WHEAT STUDENT STUDIES FUTURE

Now That Russian Riots Are · Over Demand for Flour May Decrease.

IS NO RADICAL SLUMP YET

Inability or Lack of Railroad Facilities to Transport Wheat May Effect Prices.

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.) CHICAGO, Nov. 5 .- Now that the Russan excitement is subsiding, the wheat student is more energetic than ever in rious influences that enter into the market. That the riots and prospective revolution in the Czar's land gave an abnormai stimulus to the market is admitted on all sides. The partial subsidence of the trouble and a consequent softening or prices proved the case, but the sig-inflicant thing was that there was no radical saump. Now the question arises, is the support of values due to the muscle which the bulls are exerting, or is there inherent strength in the general situation? The correct answer doubtless should give credit both to fletitious fartuence and to natural laws of trade. Where the line should be drawn is a matter which each man must decide for

Aside from these considerations, there are others which must be weighed in casting a horoscope of the future. Not are others which must be weighed in casting a horoscope of the future. Not all things are exactly as they seem, because of inefficient railroad facilities, There is a theory that if wheat and flour were handled promptly as they are offered for shipment, some of the bullish interests would be inclined to modify their views. It also is proposed that a change in the policies of millers this season has given an aspect to the wheat and flour trade, which is an illusion.

Much has been heard all season of the immense demand for flour and of the unusual consumption of this commodity. There is much truth in the cry. The American people, prosperous as they never have been before, are eating more of the high-priced cereals than before. They can afford wheat, where they used to be content with corn-meal.

A shade of doubt, however, has arisen in connection with the alleged craze for wheat bread, from the fact that the stock of flour in Chicago ngw is nearly three times as much as at the corresponding time last year, and much more than the average for several years. It is a fair assumption that there is a similar increase in stocks elsewhere. If that be true, it probably means that the large milling interests have changed that be true, it probably means that the large milling interests have changed their methods—that instead of running their methods—that instead of running their mills at frenzied speed and then closing down temporarily, according as the market for flour was brisk or quiescent—they are working full time and sending their product to the centers of distribution, while the floodtide of the wheat movement lis in progress and freight rates are at their lowest.

The Northwestern Miller is authority for the statement that the output of flour in the Northwest las week was only $1,000 barrels short of the output the week previous, which was the record-breaker of the year. The exports from Atlantic and gulf ports the week previous were 300,000 barrels, compared with 97,000 barrels the week corresponding a year 190.

ply mills further east and possible ex-port demands. Estimates from several sources are that Nebraska has marketed from 50 to 65 per cent, of her crop, These statisticians say wheat is now being moved out of the elevators to make room for corn, and that there probably will be no great resumption of wheat selling before January and possibly not before arriver. before spring. Advices from Argentine are bearish as before spring.

Advices from Argentine are bearish as to the weather and crop conditions, which are pronounced excellent and buills in the decrease of shipments. Germany is making moderate purchasers of Northern spring wheat, and the trade confidently looks for a large increase in this movement as the time fo restablishing a tariff wall against this country approaches. Small receipts fro mArgentine are beginning to cause manifest anxiety in the United Kingdom, because there is uncertainty as to what Russia will be able to do in the way of resumption of exports in case the political situation there does not remain complicated and strained. A built offering from Minneapolis is that northwestern millers are sold ahead for ninety days, and that they will grind 2,000,000 bushels of wheat a week till the first of the year if they do not sell another barrel of flour.

Corn fluctuated with wheat, and the close of the week found it under some bearish pressure, despite the many and nather startling reports of poor yield and neaver quality of grain, as disclosed by bearish pressure, despite the many and nather startling reports of poor yield and paorer quality of grain, as disclosed by the work of husking. Advices of this kind were failly denied as fast and often as they were put out. The result was their influence was nearly mullified. Dry rot in the cobs, quality impaired by too much moisture, a big slump in the estimated yield of Nebraska and Missourithese are specimens of the information dished up with suspicious emphasis. Samples of corn received here indicate that the crop is quite as good as earlier prospects showed it to be.

Toward the close of the week reports from the Northwest recited a falling off in the demand for wheat from millers at Minneapolis and a probable increase in the stocks at Duluth, advices from the latter point saying the sales of wheat were confined largely to the macaroni variety. Millers in the Southwest, on the other hand, were willing buyers at sustained prices.

A well known authority says the millers in the Dakotas and Minneapota require about 150,000,000 bushels of wheat for grinding and that the farmers need 20,000,000 bushels for seed. These three Sintes are ceitmated as having raised 187,000,000 bushels for seed. Hopeful Feeling Attributed to Granting a Constitution to Russia.

(Special Cable to The Times-Dispatch and New York Herseld Co.)

LONDON, November 6.—As was the case all over Europe, the week opened with a more hopeful feeling on the London Stock Exchange, owing to the expectation that the Czar was about to publish a manifesto in which he would announce the granting of a Constitution. The bears consequently rushed in to cover, and Monday there was a decided improvement, but it did not last. There has been heavy selling again, and continental operators have sold largely in London With the close of the week there appeared to be a somewhat hetter feeling, and opinion inclines to a more favorable view. Without being too frankly optimistic, the feeling in the House is that with every day which passes the fear of a great sanguinary struggle in Russia between the government and masses fades into the background, and it was this fear which was straining the nerves of the members of the Stock Exchange and Bourses, and holding business enterprise everywhere in check. A few despondent voices are still to be heard, but they are taken place in American rails during this past week. They have, for instance, found it difficult, if not impossible, to account for sharp advances in Readings and Eries. The feature in the London market has been a strong demand for Missouri, Kansas and Texas stocks, the result of which heing a rise of 4.3-8 in common and 2.1-2 in preferred, as compared with last week.

A fine traffic increase recorded by the Grand Trunk yesterday was received with some skepticism, a few groans even being heard in the market when it figures were announced. The excitement was occasioned by the publication on the September financial sistement and has not yet subsided, and there has been some talk of making representations to the board in Liverpool. At all events, it means a move in the mitter, for it does give one a shock after building great calculations on rosy looking weekly takings to find that gross profits are all summarily turned into net deficits,

RECEIPTS FALL OFF.

The Savannah Market, However, Shows Decrease. (Special to The Times-Dispatch.)

A., Nov. 4.-The Savannah naval stores market for the week ending to-day has been marked by a decided falling off in receipts, an active demand, and higher prices both for spirits of turpentine and for rosin. The week closes with turpentine at 603-4 week closes with turpentine at 603-4 cents, the highest point reached since the sky-high level that marked the end of May and first of June, when the contending buyers put the market up to 79 cents. The gain for the week just closed is 11-4 cents. Buyers are now beginning to realize what the factors have known for months, that the crop is going to be materially smaller than that of last season, and consequently even higher prices may be expected. This view is so firmly impressed on factors view is so firmly impressed on factors that some of the ocal house have re-fused to accept the present market price for their receipts in the expectation of a prompt advance. Shipments for the week were 2,370 casks against 1,895 last year, and for the season 135,329 against 120,551 last year. Severe Tests in Store for the Speculative Security Market.

FORECAST OF OUTCOME, RASH

Market Has Successfully Resisted Repeated Assaults, and Feels Impregnable.

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.)
NEW YORK, November 5.—There appears on the surface of things no war-rantable reason to in any way modify the conclusion that the speculative sethe conclusion that the speculative se-curity market is likely to be subjected to some further severe tests of its sta-bility, and that, too, at no very remote date. To attempt to forecast the out-come should be rash. Wall Street has seen such wonderful strength upon each recent occasion when pressure has been applied, that a feeling of confidence has been engendered among the professional trading element. This constitutes a pow-erful defense against the ordinary or merely (wansitory occur jonces jof ad-verse nature, to which all speculative markets are subjected.

That confidence is abounding upon the markets are subjected.

That confidence is abounding upon the part of the pool and clique operators is unmistakable and that there is justification for a hopeful feeling as to the industrial and commercial future is amply enough demonstrated in the highly satisfactory fundamental conditions. It is not altogether strange, either, that a recognition of the underlying conditions manifested in tangible form in highly favorable corporations' statements that if maniested in tangine form in highly fav-orable corporations' statements that if the United States Steel Corporation, for instance, should have found due reflec-tion on advancing security prices, It is not confidence, but overconfidence; rot speculative trading, but overtrading, against which Wall Street has continu-ally to be warned Resisting as the ally to be warned. Resisting, as the market, successfully, repeated assaults upon it, passing, as it has, unscathed, through many trying developments, coming up smiling as, it has, after every blow, it is not perhaps strange that the blow, it is not perhaps strange that the trading element has grown to regard the speculative fabric as impregnable to all assaults. In this belief the smaller fry have been encouraged by the "great operators" and the coalesced bankers, many of whom have openly appeared as the allies or employers of the manipu-lators, while numerous others have done what they could by placing available funds at the disposal of gambling cliques funds at the disposal of gambling cliques. It does not require any special qualifications for observance; or any highly developed or expert knowledge of finance or economies to reach the conclusion that, it would have been utterly impossible for Wall Street to have experienced the wild and dangerous speculative movement of the last week, unless those who had engineered it had received support from powerful banking and financial interests.

It is impossible for cash reserves in the ceived support from powerful banking and financial interests.

It is imposible for cash reserves in the clearing house banks to have been drawn down to only $1.354.275 above legal requirements at the outset of November to the lowest point but one of the fifteen years, until banking funds had, without let or hindrance, been poured into the laps of the stock operators. Not all institutions are reprehensible in like degree for the outcome, but that the speculation and the boosting of prices has been nursed along by some of them is clear. Nothing else can explain the four por cent figures for out of town deposits made by some institutions last week.

Surely it is over-confidence that is abounding that prompts men to figure upon still greater activity and still higher prices in a security market. Until the money market is strengthened, it is but to invite disaster to continue reckless proceedings, such as Wall Street witnessed last week.

Entirely aside from the weak banking position, all caution and all conservativeness was thrown to the winds in attempting to bull speculative stocks in the first week in November with such revolutionary developments and barbarous messa-ing to bull speculative stocks in the first week in November with such revolutionary developments and barbarous massacres in Russia, which, despite some concessions wrung from the Czar through fear, reem not fully adjusted yet, and which clearly enough was reflected in the unusual action of the Imperial Bank of Germany in raising its milimum disof Germany in raising its minimum discount rate from 5 to 51/2 per cent. Surely there must have been urgent necessity for there must have been urgent necessity for this precipitate action, or it would not have been taken on Saturday, when the regular meeting day is Monday. Alterday Paris has made overtures for American gold, to prevent, if possible, a further advance in the Bank of England discount rate and a further and possibly greater unsettlement of all European money and discount markets. money and discount markets,
